The new University of South Wales begins its formal journey in April 2013 following an amalgamation of the University of Glamorgan and the University of Wales Newport. It will be a major player in the UK higher education sector with more than 30,000 students, and its unique heritage, clear pedigree and sheer scale gives USW a fantastic opportunity to make a significant impact within the region, nationally and internationally building on numerous strengths of the two combining institutions.

The new University seeks 2 outstanding individuals to lead the above faculties. You will already be a senior academic leader capable of demonstrating a range of high quality skills and experience, having successfully managed substantial change in a complex organisation. The ability to inspire academics and generate engagement is paramount, as is a very clear understanding of the issues affecting UK and Welsh higher education at this time.

If you feel you could fulfil one of these highly demanding roles then visit our website. Further information can be obtained through an informal conversation with Professor Julie Lydon, Vice-Chancellor of the new University: 01443 482 001.

Closing date: Monday 13th May 2013
