UNHCR - Refugee Data Mapping

Thank you for your interest in this exercise. Times Higher Education (THE) has partnered with UNHCR, the UN Refugee Agency, to produce the largest global mapping of higher education opportunities for refugees. This survey will allow us to collect the information needed to undertake this mapping exercise.

This mapping will serve as an essential piece of information for governments, relevant ministries, higher education institutions (HEI), and refugee and asylum seeker students to explore and access higher education pathways, and as a vital advocacy tool for raising awareness and solidarity for refugee and asylum seeker inclusion in higher education. This survey will collect data on refugee and asylum seeker enrolments, scholarship opportunities, and practices on empowering refugee and asylum seeker higher education and will support the UNHCR's strategy to achieve 15% enrolment of refugees in higher education by 2030.

For the purposes of this exercise:
A refugee is any person who meets the eligibility criteria under an applicable refugee definition, as provided for in international or regional refugee instruments, under UNHCR's mandate or in national legislation. Under international law and UNHCR's mandate, a refugee is a person outside their country of origin who is in need of international protection because of feared persecution or a serious threat to their life, physical integrity or freedom in their country of origin as a result of persecution, armed conflict, violence, massive violation of human rights or serious public disorder.

QuestionPro

Asylum seeker is a general term for a person who intends to seek or is awaiting a decision on their request for international protection. When someone crosses an international border seeking safety, they often need to apply to be legally recognised as a refugee. In some countries, 'asylum seeker' is used as a legal term referring to a person who has applied for refugee status or a complementary international protection status and has not received a final decision on their claim. It can also refer to a person who has not yet submitted an application but may intend to do so. Not every asylum seeker will ultimately be recognised as a refugee, but every refugee is initially an asylum seeker. An asylum seeker may not be sent back to their country of origin until their asylum claim has been examined through a fair procedure. They are entitled to certain minimum standards of treatment, pending determination of their status.

Temporary protected status involves the assessment of international protection needs based on circumstances in a country of origin, typically to expedite access to protection services in situations of mass displacement. However, the arrangement must meet minimum standards of treatment that reflect international refugee and human rights law obligations, and the intention is not to displace existing protection status determination instruments.

For clarity, in this exercise we are focusing on refugees and asylum seekers (including those with temporary protected status, TPS). However, if your institution has services or infrastructure that pertain to immigrants, migrants, internally displaced people, stateless people or returnees (refugees who have returned to their country of origin) which are also applicable to refugees and/or asylum seekers, please consider these in your response.

Instructions:
- Please note that the invitation to participate in this survey may reach several persons within each institution. However, we need only one comprehensive answer per institution, which represents the perspective of the entire institution. Therefore, we kindly invite you to coordinate internally before replying to the survey.
- We advise you to consult with your colleagues to gather the necessary information before replying to the online questionnaire. You can use this questionnaire in PDF format in order to collect all the necessary data prior to completing the online questionnaire.

- You will have the option to start the exercise and come back to complete it later. To do this select the 'save and continue later' option and follow the instructions. This will send you an email that contains a link to this survey and will allow you to continue from where you left off. You may forward this email to a colleague who will be able to continue on your behalf.

The survey is composed of the following sections:
1. Institution information and profile
2. Policies covering and services supporting refugee/asylum seeker students
3. Data on applications, enrolments and outcomes for refugee/asylum seeker students
4. Scholarship information for refugee/asylum seeker students

You will be asked at the start of sections 2-4 whether you would like to answer the questions. If you select 'Yes' then you will answer that section, if you select 'No' it will skip that section.

Throughout this section we will ask you to provide information for the academic years 2022/23 and 2023/24. If your institution uses proxies, for example specific countries of origin, admission on a certain scholarship, specific referral sources, etc. or other innovative approaches to report on refugee/asylum seeker students, please include your data.

Finally, we understand that not all institutions track this data by refugee/asylum seeker status and that the requested data may be incomplete or unavailable. Please input the data you do have, even if it is incomplete.

Does your institution use proxies e.g. specific countries of origin, time of arrival etc. to help count refugees/asylum seekers in your student data?

Please enter the number of refugee/asylum seekers who graduated from a third country or complementary education pathway programme at your institution in the academic years 2022/23 and 2023/24.

If you don't have the graduation data split by gender just add in the total numbers

If your institution does use proxies to count and report on refugees/asylum seekers, please use this proxy data

If you do not collect or have data on complementary education pathway graduations select 'Do not collect this data'

In order to monitor progress towards the goal of enrolling 15% of refugee/asylum seekers in higher education by 2030 the UNHCR wants to regularly collect information on applications, enrolments and graduation for refugee/asylum seeker students. It is therefore important that UNHCR understand the challenges you face in providing this information.

* Which, if any, of the following challenges are most applicable to your institution in regards to collecting quantitative data about refugee/asylum seeker students (applications, enrolment, graduation)? Please select all that apply

☐ Concerns around personally identifiable data or student privacy concerns

QuestionPro

☐ Lack of understanding about the definition of refugee/asylum seeker/displaced person etc.

☐ Lack of capacity to incorporate identification of refugee/asylum seeker status into existing data collection mechanisms

☐ Students do not self-report on their refugee/asylum seeker status when given the option to do so

☐ The value of collecting this type of data is not understood or clear

☐ Something else (please specify)

* Which, if any, of the following resources would be most useful to your organisation to enable a more efficient collection of data on the applications, enrolments and outcomes of refugee/asylum seeker students at your institution? Please select all that apply

☐ Information about standardised definitions for refugee/asylum seeker students and others with protected status, including templates for implementing this in institutional data collection

☐ Information explaining the importance of collecting data on refugee access to higher education that can be used to engage with institution staff

☐ Information about and examples of best practices from higher education institutions who have successfully implemented a process to collect data on refugee/asylum seeker access to higher education

☐ Training, workshops and webinars on the specifics of data collection for refugee/asylum seeker students including data definitions, best practice examples and case studies

☐ General information about expanding higher education access for refugee/asylum seeker students, not necessarily specific to data collection

☐ Something else (please specify)

QuestionPro

Is there anything else you would like UNHCR to know that would help to improve the quantitative data collected about refugee/asylum seeker student enrolment to support the ambition of enabling 15% of refugees to enrol in higher education by 2030?
